

Alto recorder, F

Date

1710 ca.

Primary Maker

Jacob Denner

Description

Three sections, boxwood, thumbhole and six fingerholes on the main joint, one fingerhole on the foot joint. Jacob Denner comes from the largest family within the Nuremberg guild of the Wildruf- und Horndreher (makers of animal calls and horn products) with 12 master makers spanning multiple generations. This instrument is one of eight complete alto recorders by this great German maker known to survive.

Dimensions

Overall length: 500 mm

