

Sarinda

Date

1880-1900 ca.

Description

Bowed, vertically-held folk instrument played throughout northern India, southern Afghanistan, and south Asia.

Elaborate, hand-painted flowers and leaves on body.

Carved from a single block of wood with separate fingerboard, neck, incurved sides, and skin belly. Three principal gut strings, seventeen brass and steel sympathetic strings.